FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1894.

In the Seventh district the official count shows a majority of 101 for Owens for Congress.

China has asked the United States to step in and endeavor to restore peace between it and Japan.

It is said an effort will be made to elect Robt. T. Lincoln United States Senator to succeed Senator Cullom, of Illinois.

Four U.S. Senators who called themselves Democrats are responsible for the rebuke administered by the people last week.

Reports to the Department of Agriculture show a lower yield of corn to the acre throughout the United States for 1894 than in any year since 1881.

The Republican vote in Ohio on the 6th inst. was 53,000 less than last year. The large majority of this year was due to the fact that the Democrats did not vote.

Chairman Babbcock, of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, has telegraphed to all Republican candidates defeated by small majorities to contest the election. He wants the earth.

Some Republicans are so intoxicated over the Democratic defeat that they have been wildly elating a Republican majority in Kentucky. Please notice that the returns show a Democratic majority in the State of over 10,000.

The smoke of the late political battle has cleared away sufficiently to show that the Democratic defeat was not so much of a Republican victory as might appear to the casual observer. But very few states show increases of the usual Republican vote. The result was principally due to the fact that Democrats stayed at home in large numbers.

The Administration has definitely decided to issue new 5 per cent bonds to an amount sufficient to relieve the Treasury and remove all apprehension of an exhaustion of the gold reserve. The bonds will be as before—5 per cent—but will be sold at a sufficient premium to make the actual rate 3 per cent. The issue will certainly be as much as $50,000,000, and will be more if necessary.

Better as it is.

Ex-Speaker Reed said in this city a few days ago that it was "useless to discuss the new tariff because it would be impossible for the Republicans to substitute for it a tariff of their own until after the expiration of Mr. Cleveland's term." In his interview at Ann Arbor he goes further. He finds it expedient not only to say that even if the Republicans should be successful in the coming Congressional elections the tariff would not be disturbed "until after 1896, and business would have a chance to revive," but also that, in his opinion, "it would not necessarily follow" that "the return of the Republican party to power in 1896 would mean the re-enactment of the McKinley law." The party, he thinks, "would not make this an issue," and he asks the public to believe that the McKinley Way and Means Committee, appointed by himself, made a bill that was not what it should have been. Mr. Reed perceives, as some less observant persons do not, that the current reaction against the Democratic party is not a reaction in favor of McKinleyism.—N. Y. Times, Oct. 19, 1894.

Whether the above editorial from the Times correctly represents the Ex-Speaker's position or not, it is exactly the position that he ought to assume. Printer's Ink believes that McKinley foolishness had much more to do with the panic of 1893 than any influence emanating from silver or Democratic rule; and Printer's Ink is just as good a Republican as the Chicago Inter Ocean or the New York Tribune. The Republicans who wish to file with the tariff any more than the next half a dozen years, surely to $6,150. The bank has been very successful. Has paid 8 per cent dividends since its organization. The officials are: D. J. Burchett, president; A. L. Lusk, vice president; G. R. Vinton, cashier. The building and furniture cost $7,000 and is very handsomely arranged with handsome vault and time locks. Louisa Milling Co., of which Major Burchett, president, was established in 1880. Has a capacity of seventy-five barrels per day. Their best brand is the "Emerald," the second, "Old Gold." They make three grades. The lowest is "Primrose." Ten thousand dollars is invested in the plant.

Major Burchett was born in Floyd County, Kentucky. He enlisted in Co. K, 11th Kentucky, U.S.A., as a private, was promoted to First Lt., then Capt., was promoted for gallantry, became Atlanta on the 6th of August, 1861. Fought to the close of the war and helped all he could to whip up rebels.

In 1866 and '79-'80, Major Burchett represented his district in the Kentucky legislature. He was a candidate for Congress on the Republican ticket and was defeated in 1888. He was a delegate to the National Convention that elected Harrison President of the United States. Was appointed by Pres. Harrison U. S. Marshal for the district of Kentucky in 1889.

Major Borchet is one of the best men in Kentucky, and has been one of the most successful business men in the state. He is a warm-hearted, liberal, high-spirited gentleman. His manners remind me of the old-time gallantry of the far South.

To the young editor of the Big Sandy News, the writer will remember him as the prominent and influential gentleman in this section of Kentucky, who came to Kentucky to live just after the war. He is a native of Eastern New York, and was the Lt. Col. of the 3rd New York Regiment and fought through the war in the army of the Potowac. Some years ago Col. Northup was the receiver and general manager of the Chattooga R. R., afterward reorganized into the Ohio and Big Sandy Railroad.

Col. Northup, surrounded by his charming wife and lovely young daughters, lives in a beautiful home in Louisa, and is extensively engaged in coal mining at "White House" Johnson County, Kentucky.

The finest cannel coal in Kentucky is mined at this point. From him I learned that these mines have been very successfully operated for the past eight years. The output of these mines known as the "Birds-Eye" coal is twenty thousand tons per year. The mines are located about twenty-eight miles from Louisa. One hundred miners are employed. This coal is shipped all over the Union and to Chicago and the great northwest.

The coal burns clean without dust or ashes, and beautifully too, with a soft mellow radiance that is particularly pleasing on the cold, dark winter evenings. There is not any finer coal to the Union than this.

Louisa Co. Kentucky is becoming famous as a tobacco raising country. Col. Northup is trying the experiment. He has fifty acres of beautiful tobacco which he thinks will turn out well. In case of success, tobacco raising will become an extensive industry. The old town of Quincy, Florida, or the county, has been quite successful in that line within the past half a dozen years. There are now several large New York factories established there, and hard times have not touched that town for several years.

Louisa has also a natural gas well. Several families are now using gas for fuel. Lawrence County, Ky., is awaiting the hand of the capitalist to develop her numerous resources.

Louis has one of the largest wholesale grocery houses to eastern Kentucky.

Atkins Burchett and Ratcliff, wholesale grocers—This prosperous firm was established in Louisa, in 1891. They do a business of $100,000 a year. They travel two or three men. Their trade covers a territory of almost eight counties. Lawrence, Johnson, Martin, Lloyd, Pike, Morgan, Magoffin, Knott; also Wayne Co., W. Va.

Dimensions of their handsome store, 46x80, two floors and a basement. The firm is composed of Major Burchett, L. M. Atkins and J. F. Ratcliff.

Mr. Atkins is a native of Ky., and is a large and wealthy lumber dealer.

J. F. Ratcliff is a native of Wayne County, W. Va. He is thoroughly identified with Louisa, having lived here two years, and is an elegant gentleman.

Major Burchett is president of the Bank of Louisa, and president of the Louisa Milling Co. The Bank of Louisa was organized in 1891, with a capital of $30,000. Surplus is $10,000.

A Day Spent in Louisa.

Louisa, the county seat of Lawrence, Co., Ky., is one of the most beautiful little towns I have ever seen. The streets are wide and laid off at right angles, and clean. In summer the brilliant flowers surrounding Louisa's many handsome residences, render the town particularly attractive. Louisa is the best shaded town in Ky.

Everything was torn up with the election and I missed seeing many prominent people whom I would have been glad to have met. Anyhow Lawrence County went Democratic by a good majority, and that is some consolation, amid the general Republican rejoicing throughout Uncle Sam's vast domain.

The assessed value of Lawrence county is two million and nine hundred thousand dollars. Lawrence is one of the most prosperous counties in Kentucky. A large area of territory is tributary to the town of Louisa and many of her merchants do a very handsome business.

I had the pleasure of meeting Col. Jay H. Northup, one of the prominent and influential gentlemen in this section of Kentucky, who came to Kentucky to live just after the war. He is a native of Eastern New York, and was the Lt. Col. of the 93d New York Regiment and fought through the war in the army of the Potomac. Some years ago Col. Northup was the receiver and general manager of the Chattooga R. R., afterward reorganized into the Ohio and Big Sandy Railroad.

Iowa, May, 1890.

I suffered from temporary rheumatism from time to time, and was always treated by Dr. St. Louis, and our doctor said he was the best medicine for similar trouble.

T. H. KERICK.

Omaha, Neb., October, 1890.

Writing to a newspaper about a year ago, I was advised to take a steamer and a steaming bath, which I did. For months I had no trouble, but then I became lame and ran about, and could not work. At this time I learned of Pastor Kerick's New Tonic, and at once ordered a bottle. After I had given him the second dose he told me it was much better, and when he knew my trouble he sent me the bottle he was entirely cured and is still.
